

PROJECT ALPHA 2009

Annual Project Alpha Session set for March 14, 2009

Guy-talk focuses on responsibility and making good choices

Greenville, SC, February 17, 2009- "Men are getting together" in Greenville, South Carolina, at the Disciples Fellowship Baptist Church Campus, 105 Crestfield Road to talk about important life issues, including the responsibilities of sexuality and fatherhood. The event is slated for March 14th from 9:00 am until 2:00 pm.

Project Alpha uses videos, handouts and small-group discussions led by experts in health, education, and law. Discussion is both informal and frank and the safe environment encourages young men to ask about responsibility and respect. Since 1980, Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity and the March of Dimes have been sponsoring Project Alpha to help young men, ages 12-17, make positive choices about their sexual behavior and responsibilities.

Project Alpha is a nation-wide program sponsored by Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity, Inc., and the March of Dimes to prevent teenage pregnancy for the last twenty-nine years. This year, the upstate Alpha chapters in Greenville, Spartanburg, Anderson, and Clemson will work together with local middle school and high school boys to help them better understand their role in responsible behavior and make better life choices.
